

INQUEST ON CORNER QUESTIONS MOTHER BELIEVED SPELL WAS CAST OVER HER MENTAL DISTRESS AFTER INFLUENZA

A verdict of suicide while of unsound mind was recorded at the inquest at Westminster today on Miss Violet Kennedy Erskine (35), of Dun House, Montrose, who was found dead in her bedroom at the Empress Club, Dover Street, London, W., on Christmas Day.

Her inquest, the coroner, held an inquest at Westminster today on Miss Violet Mary Ann Kennedy Erskine, of Dun House, Montrose, who was found dead in her bedroom at the Empress Club, Dover Street, London, after she had returned on Christmas night.

Miss Erskine was the daughter of Mr. Alvin Kennedy Erskine, of Dun House, Montrose, the widow of Mr. John Augustus J. W. Kennedy Erskine. The case had been commenced with Dun House for over 500 years.

Mother's Evidence. Mrs. Kennedy Erskine said that her daughter came to London from Hastings Park, Haverhill, where she had been living for some time.

Referring to the coroner, who asked her if she had heard of anything concerning the inquest, Mrs. Kennedy Erskine replied: "I do not recall that she seems to have had the right before she happened to have some kind of fear about something getting an influenza over her."

She had an idea he was getting an influenza, Mrs. Kennedy Erskine added that her daughter told her she had had a bad time, but she did not know what she meant.
